

Sequoyah

<http://gardenofpraise.com/ibdsequo.htm>

Sequoyah learned the fur trade	"speaking leaves".
In addition to trading fur, Sequoyah	create a written language for his people.
He signed his silver works	was to draw pictures.
After his mother died	actually a syllabary.
The Indians called the English books	was also a silversmith.
Sequoyah decided to	a written symbol for each syllable.
His first attempt at written language	from his mother.
Sequoyah's alphabet is	Sequoyah lived recklessly.
A syllabary has	tribesmen he had written their language.
His daughter helped him convince his	in about a week.
He could teach people to read	with the name George Guess.
To honor him the Cherokee General Council	gave him a silver medal.